mager for Norristown Firm Checked Payroll Money at Reading Terminal

THEN NERVE FAILED HIM

The somewhat thrilling hold-up story edothing factory of Richman, Newbe had been robbed of nearly $2600 was a fake, according to the police, who say that Buchman has confessed. Personal financial difficulties, It is ald, caused Buchman to take the money a means of tiding him over a crisis. Buchman was found semi-conscious afternoon in an unoccupied mom of the plant. A rag saturated with chloroform was found nearby.

Buchman said that after he had drawn

CHURCH CONVENTION

Meeting to Open Friday Will Pass on Changes in P. E. Book of Prayer

LONG DEBATE IS EXPECTED

The proposed revision of the Book of Common Prayer, which has been in use for nearly 400 years in the Prot-estant Episcopal Church and which will be taken up by the General Convention in Portland, Ore., is really one of the the convention, according to the Rev Dr. Louis C. Washburn, rector of Old Christ Church.

The same thing, he says, is true of the changes in the wording of the marriage ceremony. "The task of 'properly adjusting the liturgical manual of the church to the changed conditions of the world," said Dr. Washburn, "is one which will occupy a considerable portion of the time of the convention, which opens next Kriday. The Book of Common l'rayer is, next to the Bible, the most precious heritage of English Christianity, and its influence on the thought. ity, and its influence on the thought and the life of the world has been literally incalculable.

"To bring it into a closer relationship with the prevailing tendencies of today a commission has been formulating certain proposed changes. Some of these were adopted by the last General Convention three years ago and will come up for final action; others have been suggested in the interim and will be submitted for the first time at this meeting. This diocese will be especially ably represented at the convention. At our diocesan convention last May our delegates to the General Convention were ntrusted with the mission to make every effort to have the next General Convention held in this city.

"Historically no parish is so identified with the development of the General Convention as that of Old Christ Church, of Philadelphia. It was here that the first general meetings were under the presidency of Bishop White and almost all of the early sessions of the convention were convened in Christ Church. In those early days the same men were prominent alike in the Gov-ernment of the country and that of the Church, and the resemblance in the
